Australian Citizenship
Our Common Bond
All of the information you need to sit the Australian citizenship test is in this book. You are not required to purchase or obtain other citizenship packages from any individuals or organisations in order to pass the citizenship test. The department does not endorse or recommend any package that claims it will assist you to pass the citizenship test.

© Commonwealth of Australia 2013

All material presented in this publication is provided under a Creative Commons Attribution 3.0 Australia licence (http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/3.0/au/deed.en).

For the avoidance of doubt, this means this licence only applies to material as set out in this document.

The terms under which the Coat of Arms can be used are detailed on the It's an Honour website (http://www.itsanhonour.gov.au/coat-arms/index.cfm).

Contact us

Enquiries regarding the licence and any use of this document are welcome at:
National Communications Branch
Department of Immigration and Citizenship
PO Box 25
BELCONNEN ACT 2616
Telephone: (02) 6264 2233
comms@immi.gov.au

Published by the National Communications Branch of the Department of Immigration and Citizenship
6 Chan Street Belconnen ACT 2617

Disclaimer:
Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander readers are warned that this publication contains images and/or content relating to deceased persons.
Contents

A message to you
3

Testable section

Part 1 – Australia and its people 8

Part 2 – Australia’s democratic beliefs, rights and liberties 16

Part 3 – Government and the law in Australia 22

Glossary of testable section 30

Practice test questions
34

Non-testable section

Part 4 – Australia today
38

Part 5 – Our Australian story
54

Glossary of non-testable section
72

For more information
74

Acknowledgments
76
Australian citizenship is a privilege that offers enormous rewards. By becoming an Australian citizen, you are joining a unique national community.
A message to you

Congratulations on choosing to become an Australian citizen. It takes courage, endeavour and commitment to live in a new country and participate fully as a citizen. We value your contribution to our peaceful and democratic society.

Australian citizenship is an important step in your migration story. Becoming an Australian citizen means that you are making an ongoing commitment to Australia and all that this country stands for. It is also the beginning of your formal membership of the Australian community. It is the step that will enable you to say ‘I am Australian’.

Australian citizenship is a privilege that offers enormous rewards. By becoming an Australian citizen, you are joining a unique national community. Our country has been built on the combined contributions of our Indigenous people and those who came later from all over the world. We celebrate this diversity and at the same time, strive for a unified and harmonious nation.

The strength of the Australian community means that we work together to solve problems and to make Australia the great country that it is. We have a stable system of government and Australians respect the authority and laws of the government. Our stability, our culture and our laws have been shaped by our history. By joining the Australian community, you will inherit this history and you will be in a position to contribute to it.

Australia is an ancient land. It is vast and unique. It is a country of rainforests and woodlands; of golden beaches and dry deserts. Our Indigenous cultures are the oldest continuing cultures in the world. We are also a young nation; a nation of migrants. European settlement in Australia began in 1788 and we continue to welcome new migrants today. People from more than 200 countries have made Australia their home. As a result, our society is one of the most diverse in the world. Australia successfully combines ethnic and cultural diversity with national unity. Citizenship is the bond that unites us all.

Australia is a democracy. Citizenship gives you the opportunity to fully participate in building our democratic nation. It means that you are ready to fulfil your responsibilities as a formal member of the Australian community. Australians believe in the dignity and freedom of each person, the equality of men and women and the rule of law. Australian citizenship is about living out these values in your everyday life.

The Australian Citizenship Pledge

It is important for all Australian citizens to understand our rights and responsibilities and what it means to be a citizen, whether we are Australian by birth or by choice. It is a critical part of building our nation.

When you attend your Australian citizenship ceremony, you will make the Australian Citizenship Pledge. In doing so, you are making a public commitment to Australia and accepting the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship. Learning the meaning behind the Pledge will give you a greater understanding of what it means to be an Australian and the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship.

This is the pledge you will make:

From this time forward, under God,

I pledge my loyalty to Australia and its people,

whose democratic beliefs I share,

whose rights and liberties I respect, and

whose laws I will uphold and obey.

* A person may choose whether or not to use the words ‘under God’.

As you read this book, you will gain a full understanding of the meaning behind the Pledge and how you can enhance your role in Australian society.
Becoming an Australian citizen
Australia’s migrant history is over 200 years old. In this regard, we are still a young nation and you are a part of our story. The decisions you make as a citizen of Australia will help to shape our future.

The Australian citizenship test
The Australian citizenship test is designed to assess whether you have an adequate knowledge of Australia and the responsibilities and privileges of citizenship.

The citizenship test is also designed to assess whether you have a basic knowledge of the English language. English is our national language. Communicating in English helps you to play a more active role in Australian society. It helps you to take full advantage of education, employment and the other opportunities Australia has to offer.

The citizenship test is a computer based multiple-choice test in English. The citizenship test consists of 20 questions drawn at random from a pool of questions. To pass the test, you must answer 75 per cent, or 15 out of 20 questions, correctly.

Citizenship tests are conducted in Department of Immigration and Citizenship offices around Australia. Tests are also scheduled in a number of locations throughout regional Australia and in some overseas missions.

By passing the citizenship test, you will have shown that you understand the commitment you are making by taking the Australian Citizenship Pledge.

Preparing for the Australian citizenship test
To prepare for the citizenship test you will need to read this resource book.

Resource book
This resource book has a testable and a non-testable section.
DVD
An audio-visual DVD in English is also available to help prospective citizens prepare for the citizenship test. On the DVD you will find a presentation of the key points from the testable section, as well as the 20 practice test questions. This DVD has been produced as a study aid for those clients with low English language proficiency. The DVD is available for order or for download from the Australian citizenship website www.citizenship.gov.au.

Assistance during the Australian citizenship test
It is expected that most prospective Australian citizens will have the literacy skills necessary to complete the citizenship test without assistance. For those people who require assistance because of low English literacy skills, an officer can help by reading the questions and possible answers aloud. Assistance will also be available to people with low levels of computer skills, or who have a disability. If you think you will need assistance during the citizenship test, please advise the citizenship officer.

Our Common Bond: A Course in Australian Citizenship
You may be eligible to attend an Australian citizenship course instead of the computer based test.

The citizenship course will cover all the information in the testable section of this book. You will still need to show that you have a basic knowledge of English and understand the concepts in the Australian Citizenship Pledge.

More information about the course is available from the Australian citizenship website www.citizenship.gov.au.

For more information
You can call the Citizenship Information Line on 131 880 (Monday to Friday 8.30 am to 4.30 pm).

If you require the services of an interpreter, please call 131 450.

You can also visit the Australian citizenship website www.citizenship.gov.au.

The Australian citizenship ceremony
Australian citizenship ceremonies can be small, involving just a few people, or they can be very large, involving hundreds or even thousands of people. The depth of feeling and pride among new citizens and officials makes it a very joyful celebration.

At the beginning of a citizenship ceremony, you may be welcomed by a representative of the Indigenous people who are the traditional owners of the land in your area. You will hear words of welcome and encouragement from other leaders of your local community or government representatives.

You will read or repeat the Australian Citizenship Pledge aloud with other people who have chosen to become Australian citizens. This is the most important part of the ceremony. You do not become an Australian citizen until you have made your pledge of commitment to Australia. You are welcome to bring a holy book or scripture to hold while you make the Pledge, but you do not have to do so.

Leaders from your community or government representatives will make short speeches on the meaning of citizenship. You will receive your Certificate of Australian Citizenship and you may also receive a small gift from the community. Everyone will sing ‘Advance Australia Fair’, the Australian national anthem. After the citizenship ceremony, you will have the chance to meet and celebrate with your fellow Australians.

We wish you every success in becoming an Australian citizen and in pursuing a peaceful and productive life in Australia.
The start of the testable section
Part 1

Australia and its people

From this time forward, under God,*

I pledge my loyalty to Australia and its people,

whose democratic beliefs I share,

whose rights and liberties I respect, and

whose laws I will uphold and obey.

* A person may choose whether or not to use the words 'under God'.

* A person may choose whether or not to use the words 'under God'.
Australia and its people

At the citizenship ceremony, you pledge your loyalty to Australia and its people. It is therefore important for you to have an understanding of Australia’s community and population, including our Indigenous heritage. It is also important for you to understand how Australia developed from its uncertain beginnings as a British colony to the stable and successful multicultural nation it is today.

In this section, you will read about some of the events that have contributed to our story. There is information about our states and territories, and there is information on the traditions and symbols that we proudly identify as being distinctly Australian.

Our people

Indigenous Australians

Australia’s first inhabitants were the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people. They are the Indigenous people of Australia. Australia’s Indigenous cultures are the oldest continuing cultures in the world.

Historically, Aboriginal people are from mainland Australia and Tasmania. They have lived here for between 40 000 and 60 000 years.

Torres Strait Islanders are from islands to the north of Queensland. They have a distinct cultural identity.

Indigenous people share common beliefs and traditions that still guide them today. They have a deep connection with the land that is expressed in their stories, art and dance.

Early days of European settlement

European settlement started when the first 11 convict ships, which became known as the ‘First Fleet’, arrived from Great Britain on 26 January 1788.

At this time British laws were harsh and the jails could not hold the large number of people imprisoned for their crimes. To manage this problem, the British Government decided to transport these convicts to the other side of the world; to the new colony of New South Wales.

The first governor of the colony of New South Wales was Captain Arthur Phillip. He overcame many problems in the first few years of European settlement. The colony survived and as more convicts and free settlers arrived, it grew and developed. More colonies were established in other parts of the country.

Early free settlers were from Great Britain and Ireland. This British and Irish heritage has had a major influence on Australia’s history, culture and political institutions.

In 1851, gold was discovered in the colonies of New South Wales and Victoria. People from all around the world came to these colonies to try their luck at making a fortune. Chinese people arriving at this time were the first large group of migrants not from Europe. In 10 years, the population more than doubled.

The nation of Australia

Over the following decades, the separate colonies discussed the idea of becoming one nation.

In 1901, the colonies were united into a federation of states called the Commonwealth of Australia. At that time, Australia’s population was counted at about four million people. This number did not include the Indigenous people.

Throughout the first half of the 20th century, migration levels rose and fell. There were programs to actively encourage British migrants to settle here, and many did.

A wave of non-British migration came after World War II, when millions of people in Europe had to leave their homelands. Large numbers came to Australia to build a new life.

In recent years, our migration and refugee programs have brought people to Australia from all over the world. People have come here to join family, to make a new life in a young country, or to escape poverty, war or persecution.

Today, Australia has a population of about 22 million people. Over one quarter of these people were born overseas. Australia is greatly enriched by the contribution these people make to our nation. While we celebrate the diversity of Australia’s people, we also aim to build a cohesive and unified nation.

Australia’s national language is English. It is part of our national identity. Everyone in Australia is encouraged to learn and use English to help them participate in Australian society. Communicating in English is also important for making the most of living and working in Australia. Other languages are also valued. In Australia’s diverse society, over 200 languages are spoken.
Australia’s states and territories

The Commonwealth of Australia is a federation of states and territories. There are six states and two mainland territories. Canberra is Australia’s capital city, and each state and mainland territory has its own capital.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>State</th>
<th>Capital city</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>New South Wales (NSW)</td>
<td>Sydney</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Victoria (Vic.)</td>
<td>Melbourne</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Queensland (Qld)</td>
<td>Brisbane</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Western Australia (WA)</td>
<td>Perth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>South Australia (SA)</td>
<td>Adelaide</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tasmania (Tas.)</td>
<td>Hobart</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Territory</th>
<th>Capital city</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Australian Capital Territory (ACT)</td>
<td>Canberra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Northern Territory (NT)</td>
<td>Darwin</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Canberra is also Australia’s capital city
The states

New South Wales was the first colony established by the British. Sydney is the capital city of New South Wales and is the nation’s largest city. Sydney’s Harbour Bridge and Opera House are national icons.

Victoria is the smallest of the mainland states. Many fine buildings in Victoria were built from the wealth created by the gold rush of the 1850s. Victoria’s capital city is Melbourne.

Queensland is the second largest state. It has the Torres Strait Islands in the north, tropical rainforests, temperate coastal areas and an often dry inland. The world famous Great Barrier Reef runs along its eastern coast. Queensland’s capital city is Brisbane.

Western Australia is the largest state. The east of the state is mostly desert, while the south-west is a rich agricultural and wine-growing area. The state is home to many large mining projects. About three-quarters of the state’s population lives in Perth, the capital city.

South Australia has a rugged coastline and many famous wine regions. Adelaide, the capital city, has many examples of fine colonial architecture.

Tasmania is the smallest state, separated from the mainland by Bass Strait. Much of the island has unspoilt wilderness landscapes. Tasmania’s capital city is Hobart.

The territories

The Australian Capital Territory is situated between Sydney and Melbourne. It is the site of the nation’s capital city, Canberra. Canberra is home to important national institutions, such as Parliament House and the High Court of Australia.

The Northern Territory has the tropics in the north and red desert soil in the south. Most of its small population live in the capital city, Darwin, and along the main highway between Darwin and Alice Springs, which is the main town near the centre of Australia.
Traditions and symbols

Important days for Australians

Australia Day

On 26 January each year, we celebrate Australia Day. Australia Day is a public holiday in every state and territory in Australia.

On Australia Day, large and small communities across Australia celebrate all that is great about Australia and being Australian. It is the biggest annual public event in Australia.

Australia Day is the day that we honour our history and all the people who have made this nation great. It is a day to rejoice in the present and commit to a happy and prosperous future together. For this reason, it is a day when many citizenship ceremonies are held across the country.

It is the anniversary of the arrival of the First Fleet from Great Britain in 1788 to set up a convict settlement for the British Government. The commander of the First Fleet was Captain Arthur Phillip.

On the eve of Australia Day, the Prime Minister announces the Australian of the Year Awards in Canberra.

Anzac Day

Anzac Day is observed on 25 April each year. Anzac Day is named after the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps, which landed at Gallipoli in Turkey during World War I on 25 April 1915.

Anzac Day is a solemn day when we remember the sacrifice of all Australians who served and died in wars, conflicts and peacekeeping operations. We also honour the courage and commitment of all servicemen and women.

More information about Australia Day, Anzac Day and other important national days and celebrations can be found in Part 4, Australia today.
Australia’s flags

The Australian National Flag is the official flag of our nation. Other flags that are officially recognised and may be flown in the community include the Australian Aboriginal Flag and the Torres Strait Islander Flag.

Each state and territory also has its own flag. These can be found on page 11.

The Australian National Flag

The Australian National Flag is blue, white and red. It has three important parts:

- The flag of Great Britain, known as the Union Jack, is in the top left corner. The flag represents our history of British settlement.
- The Commonwealth Star is under the Union Jack. This star has seven points, one point for each of the six states and one for the territories.
- The Southern Cross, on the right, is a group of stars we see in the southern sky.

The Australian Aboriginal Flag

The Australian Aboriginal Flag is black, red and yellow. It has three important parts, and the most common interpretation of the colours is:

- The top half is black and represents the Aboriginal people of Australia.
- The bottom half is red and represents the earth and a spiritual relation to the land.
- The yellow circle represents the sun.

The Torres Strait Islander Flag

The Torres Strait Islander Flag is green, blue, black and white.

- The green stripes represent the land.
- The blue panel in the centre represents the sea.
- The black lines represent the Torres Strait Islander people.
- The white dancer’s headdress in the centre is a symbol for all Torres Strait Islanders.
- The points of the white star represent the island groups in the Torres Strait.
- The colour white is a symbol of peace.
Commonwealth Coat of Arms
The Commonwealth Coat of Arms is the official symbol of the Commonwealth of Australia. It represents our national unity. It identifies the authority and property of the Commonwealth of Australia.

- The shield in the centre represents the six states and federation.
- A kangaroo and an emu support the shield on each side. Kangaroos are native Australian animals and emus are native Australian birds.
- A gold Commonwealth Star sits above the shield.
- The background is the golden wattle, Australia’s national flower.

Australia’s national flower
Australia’s national flower is the golden wattle. This small tree grows mainly in south-eastern Australia. It has bright green leaves and many golden yellow flowers in spring. Each of the states and territories of Australia also has its own floral emblem.

Australia’s national colours
Australia’s national colours are green and gold, the colours of the golden wattle. The uniforms of our national sports teams are usually green and gold.

Australia’s national gemstone
The opal is Australia’s national gemstone. In Aboriginal legend, a rainbow touched the earth and created the colours of the opal.
Australia’s national anthem

‘Advance Australia Fair’ is Australia’s national anthem. It is sung on occasions of national importance. It is also sung at Australian citizenship ceremonies, major sporting events and at school. It unites the nation and is a public expression of the joy and pride in being Australian.

Advance Australia Fair

Australian all let us rejoice,
For we are young and free;
We’ve golden soil and wealth for toil;
Our home is girt by sea;
Our land abounds in nature’s gifts
Of beauty rich and rare;
In history’s page, let every stage
Advance Australia Fair.
In joyful strains then let us sing,
Advance Australia Fair.

Beneath our radiant Southern Cross
We’ll toil with hearts and hands;
To make this Commonwealth of ours
Renowned of all the lands;
For those who’ve come across the seas
We’ve boundless plains to share;
With courage let us all combine
To Advance Australia Fair.
In joyful strains then let us sing,
Advance Australia Fair.

*While you may be tested on Australia’s national anthem, you will not be tested on the words of the anthem.
Part 2
Australia’s democratic beliefs, rights and liberties

From this time forward, under God,*

I pledge my loyalty to Australia and its people,

whose democratic beliefs I share,

whose rights and liberties I respect, and

whose laws I will uphold and obey.

* A person may choose whether or not to use the words 'under God'.
Australia’s democratic beliefs, rights and liberties

At the citizenship ceremony, you pledge that you share Australia’s democratic beliefs and that you respect the rights and liberties of the people of Australia.

Australia is a democracy. A democracy is a system of government in which citizens freely choose representatives to govern the country and make laws on their behalf.

Australians believe in peace, respect, freedom and equality. An important part of being Australian is respecting other people’s differences and choices, even if you don’t agree with those choices. It is about treating people fairly and giving all Australians equal opportunities and freedoms, no matter where they come from, what their traditions are, or whether they are male or female.

These democratic beliefs have shaped our country and culture and are a reason why so many people want to become Australian. It is therefore very important that you understand these democratic beliefs, and the rights and liberties that all Australian people respect.

Our democratic beliefs

Parliamentary democracy

Australia’s system of government is a parliamentary democracy. This means that all Australians are involved in how the country is governed. The power of the government comes from the Australian people because Australian citizens regularly vote for people to represent them in parliament. Only parliament has the power to make and change the laws that govern the country.

In a parliamentary democracy, the representatives in parliament must answer to the people, through elections, for the decisions they make.

The rule of law

Australia’s laws are important for all people living in Australia. Australians recognise the value of laws in maintaining a peaceful and orderly society. All Australians have the right to be protected by Australia’s laws.

Everyone must obey Australia’s laws. If they don’t obey the law, they may be arrested by the police and have to go to court.

All Australians are equal under the law and no person or group is above the law. This is called the ‘rule of law’. People who hold positions of power in the Australian community must obey Australia’s laws. This includes government, community and religious leaders, as well as businessmen and the police.

Living peacefully

We are proud to live in a peaceful country with a stable system of government. We believe that change should occur through discussion, peaceful persuasion and the democratic process. We reject violence as a way to change a person’s mind or the law.

Respect for all individuals regardless of background

People come to settle in Australia from countries around the world. Many people have a different cultural heritage with different beliefs and traditions. In our democratic society, we are all free to follow and share these beliefs and traditions as long as they do not break Australian laws.

We value this freedom and expect all Australians to treat each other with dignity and respect, regardless of their race, country of origin, gender, sexual preference, marital status, age, disability, heritage, culture, politics, wealth or religion.

We value this mutual respect for the dignity of all people.

Compassion for those in need

In Australia, there is a spirit of ‘mateship’. This means we help and receive help from each other in times of need. A mate is often a friend, but can also be a total stranger. A mate might take a meal to an elderly neighbour, drive a friend to a medical appointment or visit someone who is lonely.

Because of this spirit of mateship, many individual people and groups help others through voluntary community work. You can also be a volunteer. Volunteering can be very satisfying. It is also a great opportunity to share knowledge, learn new skills, and increase your sense of belonging to the Australian community. Our government also supports Australians in need through social security and other services.
Our freedoms
Freedom of speech and freedom of expression

Freedom of speech allows people to say and write what they think and to discuss their ideas with others. Freedom of expression allows people to express their views through art, film, music and literature.

In Australia, we are free to say and write what we think, privately or publicly, about any topic. However, we cannot harm others.

Freedom of association

Australians are free to join any legal organisation, such as a political party, trade union, religious, cultural or social group. People can also decide not to join.

Australians can gather with others to protest against a government action or an organisation. However, all protests must be within the law. This means they must be peaceful, and must not injure any person or damage property.

Freedom of religion and secular government

Australia has a Judaeo-Christian heritage, and many Australians describe themselves as Christians. Australia has public holidays on Christian days such as Good Friday, Easter Sunday and Christmas Day.

However, the government in Australia is secular. This means that there is no official national religion.

People in Australia are free to follow any religion they choose, as long as its practices do not break Australian laws. In addition to Christianity, Buddhism, Islam, Hinduism, Judaism and many other religions are practised freely in Australia.

Australians are also free to not follow a religion. The government treats all citizens equally, whatever their religion or beliefs.

This mix of religions contributes to making Australia a vibrant multicultural society.

Most religions have rules, but these are not laws in Australia. For example, the process of divorce, including custody of children and property settlement, must follow laws passed by the Australian Parliament. All Australians have the right to be protected by these laws. Some religious or cultural practices, such as being married to more than one person at the same time, are against Australian law.
Our equalities

Equality in Australia

There are a number of laws in Australia that make sure a person is not treated differently to others because of their gender, race, disability or age.

Equality of men and women

Men and women have equal rights in Australia. It is against the law to discriminate against a person because of their gender.

Both men and women have the right to make their own independent choices about personal matters such as marriage, and are protected by the law from intimidation or violence.

Both men and women have equal access to education and employment. Both men and women can vote and stand for parliament. Both men and women can join the Australian Defence Force and the police. Men and women are treated equally in courts of law.

Equality of opportunity

Australians do not believe in class distinctions in our society. Instead, we believe in a fair society, where everyone deserves a ‘fair go’. This means that what someone achieves in life should be a result of their hard work and talents, rather than their wealth or background. For example, a person should get a job or a promotion on the basis of their skills, ability and experience, not because of their background.

Australia has many stories of new migrants who have become leaders in business, the professions, the arts, public service and sport through their hard work and talents.
Responsibilities and privileges of Australian citizenship

As a permanent resident of Australia, you have already enjoyed living in a free and democratic society. When you become an Australian citizen, you will have new responsibilities. You will also have a range of new benefits.

Responsibilities – what you will give Australia

As an Australian citizen you must:

• obey the law
• vote in federal and state or territory elections, and in a referendum
• defend Australia should the need arise
• serve on a jury if called to do so.

Privileges – what Australia will give you

As an Australian citizen you have the right to:

• vote in federal and state or territory elections, and in a referendum
• apply for work in the Australian Public Service or in the Australian Defence Force
• seek election to parliament
• apply for an Australian passport and re-enter Australia freely
• receive help from an Australian official while overseas
• register children born overseas as Australian citizens by descent.

Responsibilities

Obey the law

Our representatives in government make laws to maintain an orderly, free and safe society and to protect our rights. All Australians must obey the laws made by the Australian Parliament, state and territory parliaments, and local government.

More information about some important laws in Australia can be found in Part 3, Government and the law in Australia.

Defend Australia should the need arise

While service in the Australian Defence Force is voluntary, should the need arise it is vital that all Australian citizens be committed to joining together to defend the nation and its way of life.

Vote in federal and state or territory elections, and in a referendum

Voting is both an important right and responsibility for all Australian citizens. We vote for the people we want to represent us in parliament. By doing this, we all have our say in how the country is governed and contribute to the future of Australia.

As a citizen, you will vote regularly in federal and state or territory elections. Occasionally, you will vote in a referendum, which is a vote to change the Australian Constitution. More information about the Australian Constitution can be found in Part 3, Government and the law in Australia.

Australian citizens aged 18 years or over must register their name and address on the electoral roll. Once you are on the electoral roll, voting is compulsory for Australian citizens aged 18 years or over in federal and state or territory elections.

Voting in local government elections is not compulsory in some states.

We have our say by voting in federal, state or territory and local government elections.
Serve on a jury if called to do so
Jury service is a responsibility for Australian citizens aged 18 years or over. A jury is a group of ordinary Australian men and women who listen to the evidence in a court case and decide if a person is guilty or not guilty.

Any Australian who is on the electoral roll may be called to serve on a jury.

Jury service helps to make sure that the court system is open and fair.

Privileges
Apply for work in the Australian Public Service and the Australian Defence Force
If you are an Australian citizen, you can apply to join the Australian Public Service and work for the Australian Government, for example, in Centrelink, Medicare or the Australian Taxation Office.

Australian citizens also have the right to apply for a career in the Australian Defence Force (the Army, Navy and Air Force).

Seek election to parliament
Australian citizens aged 18 years or over can seek election to parliament at the federal, state or territory level. It is both an honour and a serious responsibility to serve in an Australian parliament.

Apply for an Australian passport and re-enter Australia freely
When you become an Australian citizen, you have the right to live freely in Australia.

You have the right to apply for an Australian passport. As an Australian citizen, you are free to travel overseas and return to Australia. You do not need a visa to come back to Australia.

Receive help from an Australian official while overseas
In many countries, Australia has an embassy, high commission or consulate. While you are overseas, you can ask for help from an official in times of need.

This includes emergencies such as civil unrest and natural disasters. Officials can also issue emergency passports and provide advice and support in the case of an accident, serious illness or death.

When in another country, you must obey the laws of that country.

Register children born overseas as Australian citizens by descent
Australian citizens may have children born overseas. They can register their children as Australian citizens. The children then have the same rights and responsibilities of citizenship as children born in Australia.

Participating in Australian society
Australia encourages all citizens to participate in society. Citizens who participate in society contribute to Australia in many ways. You can join neighbourhood and local communities. You can volunteer to do social and community work. You can join an arts or cultural organisation. You can also actively participate in political life.

Paying tax is another important way you directly contribute to the Australian community. Tax is paid out of the money you earn, whether it’s from a job, a business or investments.

Many of the benefits that Australians enjoy are made possible through taxes. Taxes are spent on services which include health, education, defence, roads and railways, and social security. By working and paying taxes, you can support the government to provide these important services to the Australian community. These services help make Australia the peaceful and prosperous country it is today. State and territory governments and local councils also collect taxes to pay for services.

Paying tax is required by law. Tax is collected by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) from both businesses and individuals. The ATO works to ensure all citizens are aware of their tax rights and obligations to pay the correct amount of tax.
Part 3
Government and the law in Australia

From this time forward, under God,*
I pledge my loyalty to Australia and its people,
whose democratic beliefs I share,
whose rights and liberties I respect, and
whose laws I will uphold and obey.

* A person may choose whether or not to use the words ‘under God’.
Government and the law in Australia

At the citizenship ceremony, you pledge to uphold and obey the laws of Australia. It is important for you to understand Australia’s system of government, how the laws are made in our parliamentary democracy and how these laws are administered. It is also important to understand how you, as a citizen, will have a say in the running of the country.

How do I have my say?

Voting

In Australia, citizens aged 18 years or over must enrol to vote at federal elections. By voting, you get to have your say in who represents you in parliament. If you are not correctly enrolled, you are not able to vote in an election.

Once you are on the electoral roll, voting is compulsory in Australian federal and state or territory elections. If you do not vote in an election and do not have a good reason for not voting, you will have to pay a fine. Compulsory voting is a way to make sure that the people we elect are really the ones that the majority of the people want.

The Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) is a Commonwealth agency. It conducts federal elections and referendums and maintains the Commonwealth electoral roll. The AEC helps to provide voters with fair and honest elections. The AEC is independent of the government. Political parties or people in government cannot influence the decisions of the AEC. Votes are by secret ballot, so you are free and safe to vote for any candidate. No one else sees who you vote for. You can tell other people who you vote for, but no one can force you to tell them.

Raising matters with your representatives

In Australia, you have the right to raise matters that concern you with your elected representative. Your views may then be taken into consideration by parliament when it is considering new laws or changes to existing laws. For example, if you have a suggestion about how to improve the immigration system, you can make an appointment to discuss it with your local member of parliament. You can also write a letter outlining your views.

In this way, ordinary Australians can have a say in forming the laws and policies of a government.

How did we establish our system of government?

Federation

Before 1901, Australia was made up of six separate, self-governing British colonies.

Within its borders, each colony had its own constitution and its own laws relating to defence, immigration, postage, trade and transport.

People wanted to unite the colonies to form a single Australian nation for a number of reasons. Trade and transport between the colonies was expensive and slow. Enforcing the law across borders was difficult. The separate colonies also had weak systems of defence. More importantly, Australia’s national identity was beginning to form. Sporting teams were representing Australia internationally and a unique Australian culture was developing in popular songs, poems, stories and art.

Uniting the nation was a difficult task, but over a period of time, the idea of one Australian nation became a reality. Australians are proud of the fact that their nation did not emerge through revolution or bloodshed, but by negotiation and referendum.

On 1 January 1901, the colonies were united into a federation of states called the Commonwealth of Australia.
The Australian Constitution

The Commonwealth of Australia Constitution Act 1900 is the legal document that sets out the basic rules for the government of Australia. The Australian Constitution was originally passed as part of a British Act of Parliament in 1900. On 1 January 1901, when the Constitution took effect, the Australian colonies became one independent nation, the Commonwealth of Australia.

The Australian Constitution established the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia, created with a House of Representatives and a Senate. The Constitution also established the High Court of Australia, which has the power to apply and interpret the laws of Australia.

The Australian Constitution can only be changed through a special vote called a referendum.

In a referendum, there needs to be a double majority for the Australian Constitution to be changed. This means that the majority of voters in a majority of states and a majority of voters across the nation must vote for the change.

How is the power of government controlled?

The Australian Constitution divides power between three arms of government. This is to stop one person or one group of people taking over all the power to govern Australia.

Legislative power

Parliament has the power to make and change the laws. Parliament is made up of representatives who are elected by the people of Australia.

Executive power

Executive power is the power to put the laws into practice. The Executive includes Australian Government ministers and the Governor-General. Each minister is responsible for one or more government departments.

Judicial power

Judges have the power to interpret and apply the law. Courts and judges are independent of parliament and government.

These powers are written into the Australian Constitution.

Who is Australia’s Head of State?

Australia's Head of State is the Queen of Australia, Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

In Australia, the Queen does not have a day-to-day role in government. The Queen appoints the Governor-General as her representative in Australia, on advice from the Australian Prime Minister. The Governor-General acts independently of all political parties.

In each of the states there is a Governor who represents the Queen in a role that is similar to the Governor-General.

Constitutional monarchy

Australia is a constitutional monarchy. A constitutional monarchy is a country in which a king or queen is the head of state but has to act in accordance with the constitution.

The Australian system of parliamentary democracy was based on the British system, developed over many centuries. In the Australian system, the leader of the Australian Government is the Prime Minister.
The role of the Governor-General
The Governor-General:

- signs all Bills passed by the Australian Parliament into law (this is called Royal Assent)
- signs regulations
- performs ceremonial duties
- approves the appointment of the Australian Government and its ministers, federal judges and other officials.

The Governor-General also has special powers known as ‘reserve powers’ that can only be used in specific circumstances.

Who are some of Australia’s leaders?

Head of State
The Queen of Australia

Governor-General
The representative of the Head of State in Australia

Governor
The representative of the Head of State in each Australian state

Prime Minister
The leader of the Australian Government

Premier
The leader of a state government

Chief Minister
The leader of a territory government

Government Minister
A member of parliament chosen by a government leader to be responsible for an area of government

Member of Parliament (MP)
An elected representative of the Australian people in the Australian Parliament

Senator
An elected representative of a state or territory in the Australian Parliament

Mayor or Shire President
The leader of a local council

Councillor
An elected member of a local council

How is Australia governed?

Australian Government
The Australian Government is also called the Federal Government or the Commonwealth Government.

The Australian Parliament has two Houses:

- the House of Representatives
- the Senate.

The members of both Houses are directly elected by the Australian people at federal elections. When you vote in a federal election, you usually elect representatives to each House.
The House of Representatives

The House of Representatives is sometimes called the Lower House or the People’s House.

Australia is divided into federal electorates. Australians in each electorate vote for one person to represent them in the House of Representatives. This representative is called a Member of Parliament (MP).

The number of MPs for each state and territory is based on the size of its population. The people of Australia elect a total of 150 members to the House of Representatives.

The important work of the House of Representatives is to consider, debate and vote on proposals for new laws or changes to the laws. Members of the House of Representatives also discuss matters of national importance.

The Senate

The Senate is sometimes called the Upper House, the House of Review or the States’ House.

The states are equally represented in the Senate, regardless of their population size. There are 12 representatives elected from each state. Both mainland territories elect two representatives each. There are 76 representatives elected in total and they are called Senators.

Senators also consider, debate and vote on new laws or changes to the laws. Senators also discuss matters of national importance.

State and territory government

There are six states and two mainland territories in Australia. Each state has its own constitution and its own parliament. State and territory governments are based in their capital cities.

The leader of a state government is the Premier and the leader of a territory government is the Chief Minister.

State governments operate in a similar way to the Australian Government. In each state, a Governor represents the Queen of Australia. In the Northern Territory, an Administrator is appointed by the Governor-General. The role and responsibilities of the Administrator are similar to those of a state Governor.

As with the Australian Government, people vote to elect a representative for their area. These representatives become a member of the state or territory parliament.

Local government

The states and the Northern Territory are divided into local government areas. These may be called cities, shires, towns or municipalities. Each area has its own local council. Councils are responsible for planning and delivering services to their local community. Citizens in each local government area vote to elect their local councillors.
What do the three levels of government do?

The Australian Government is responsible for:

- taxation
- national economic management
- immigration and citizenship
- employment
- postal services and the communications network
- social security (pensions and family support)
- defence
- trade
- airports and air safety
- foreign affairs (relations with other countries).

State and territory governments are responsible for:

- hospitals and health services
- schools
- railways
- roads and road traffic control
- forestry
- police
- public transport.

Local governments (and the Australian Capital Territory Government) are responsible for:

- street signs, traffic controls
- local roads, footpaths, bridges
- drains
- parks, playgrounds, swimming pools, sports grounds
- camping grounds and caravan parks
- food and meat inspection
- noise and animal control
- rubbish collection
- local libraries, halls and community centres
- certain child-care and aged-care issues
- building permits
- social planning
- local environmental issues.

Some responsibilities are shared between the various levels of government. The Council of Australian Government (COAG) has been set up to encourage cooperation between the levels of government.
What role do political parties play in the way Australia is governed?

A political party is a group of people who share similar ideas about how a country should be governed. They work together to have the party’s ideas turned into laws. The main political parties in Australia are the Australian Labor Party, the Liberal Party of Australia, the Nationals and the Australian Greens.

Most members of parliament belong to political parties. Some members of parliament do not belong to any political party. They are called Independents.

In Australia, you are free to join a political party if you choose.

How is the Australian Government formed?

After an election, the political party or coalition of parties with the majority of members in the House of Representatives forms the Australian Government. The leader of this party becomes the leader of the Australian Government, the Prime Minister.

The party or coalition of parties with the second largest number of members in the House of Representatives is known as the Opposition. Its leader is called the Leader of the Opposition.

The Prime Minister chooses MPs or Senators to become ministers. Ministers are responsible for important areas of government (called portfolios), such as employment, Indigenous affairs or the Treasury. Ministers with the most senior portfolios make up the Cabinet, which is the key decision making body of the Australian Government.

How are laws made?

Citizens of Australia elect people to represent them in the Australian Parliament.

The Australian Parliament makes and changes laws to benefit the nation.

A member of the Australian Parliament proposes a new law or a change to the law. This proposal is called a Bill.

The House of Representatives and the Senate consider, debate and vote on whether they agree with the Bill.

If the majority of members in each House of Parliament agrees to the Bill, it goes to the Governor-General.

When the Governor-General signs the Bill, it becomes a law. This is called Royal Assent.

State and territory parliaments make their own laws in a similar way.

How are laws administered?

The courts

The courts in Australia are responsible for interpreting and applying the law. They are independent of the government. The courts decide if a person has broken the law or not and decide the penalty. Every person has the right to be represented by a lawyer in court. Courts can only base their decision on the evidence before them.

Judges and magistrates

The judge or magistrate is the highest authority in the court. Judges and magistrates are independent and no one can tell them what to decide.

Judges and magistrates are appointed by the government, but the government cannot take their jobs away if it disagrees with their decisions.
Juries
A court will use a jury in some cases to decide if a person has broken the law.

A jury is a group of ordinary people randomly chosen from the general population. The judge explains the law to the jury. In a criminal trial, if the jury finds a person guilty, the judge decides the penalty.

Under the law, people in Australia are considered innocent until they are found guilty by a court.

The police
The police maintain peace and order in the community. It is their job to protect life and property. They are independent of the government. If the police believe that someone has broken the law, they can arrest them and bring them before a court of law. The police may give evidence in court, but the court decides if a person is guilty or not.

The states and the Northern Territory have their own police forces. They deal with crimes under state and territory laws.

Australia also has a national police force called the Australian Federal Police. The Australian Federal Police investigates crimes against federal laws, for example, drug trafficking, crimes against national security and crimes against the environment. The Australian Federal Police is also responsible for general police work in the Australian Capital Territory.

The police and the community have a good relationship in Australia. You can report crimes and seek assistance from your local police.

It is important for you to be familiar with the laws in Australia, because not knowing a law is no excuse for breaking it.

It is a serious crime to bribe a police officer. It is a crime to even offer a bribe to a police officer.

Criminal offences in Australia
Some of the most serious crimes include murder, assault, sexual assault, violence against people or property, armed robbery or theft, having sexual relations with children or young people who are aged below the legal age of consent, dangerous driving of a motor car, possession and use of illegal drugs and fraud.

As in other countries, violence towards another person is illegal in Australia and is a very serious crime. This includes violence within the home and within marriage, known as domestic or family violence. Domestic violence includes physical, sexual or psychological abuse or harm, forced sexual relations, forced isolation or economic deprivation.

Carrying weapons such as knives or guns is against the law in Australia. A person who wishes to own a gun, for example, for use on a farm, must first obtain a firearm licence from the police.

Traffic offences
Road and traffic rules are controlled by state and territory governments. People can be fined large amounts of money or even sent to prison for breaking traffic laws. To drive a car in Australia, you must have a local driver’s licence and the car must be registered.

Everybody travelling in a car must wear a seatbelt. Babies and young children must be in an approved car seat. Traffic laws relating to speeding and driving after drinking alcohol or taking drugs are very strict. It is also against the law to talk on a hand-held mobile phone while driving.

In conclusion
Our democratic institutions have created a peaceful and stable society. We have a rich and unique culture to share. As an Australian citizen, you will become part of our nation’s story and will contribute to our future. Australia welcomes you. Citizenship is our common bond.

In preparation for the citizenship test, try the practice test questions on pages 34 and 35.
Glossary of testable section

Australian Public Service
government departments and people employed by them
Paul got a job in the Australian Public Service as a Centrelink officer.

civil unrest
demonstrations and riots by large numbers of people, usually protesting against a government decision or policy
There was civil unrest when the government passed the unpopular laws.

coalition
the joining of two or more political parties, usually to form a government or opposition
After the election, there was no party with a majority in the House of Representatives, so two parties with similar ideas joined to form a coalition.

commission
a group of people with an official responsibility
An independent commission organises the elections.

constitutional monarchy
a country in which a king or queen is the head of state, whose powers are limited by the constitution
Our Constitution established the Commonwealth of Australia as a constitutional monarchy, with the King or Queen of the United Kingdom as our Head of State.

court
a place where legal cases are heard by a judge or magistrate
When people break the law, they may go to court.

criminal trial
a hearing of facts by a court to decide if a person is guilty or not guilty of an alleged crime.
After the criminal trial, the bank robber was sent to jail.

democracy
government by the people through elected representatives Grace was happy to live in a democracy where she could vote for her representative in parliament.

drug trafficking
carrying or buying drugs to sell illegally
Jess was sent to jail for drug trafficking.

economic deprivation
a form of domestic violence, where one partner in a relationship prevents the other partner from receiving or handling money
Lin experienced economic deprivation because her husband gave her no money.

election
an event in which citizens choose a person to represent them in parliament
Australian citizens aged 18 years or over must vote in an election.
electoral roll
the list of people entitled to vote in an election or referendum
When Jan arrived at the voting centre, the official looked for her name on the electoral roll.

enforce the law
to make sure that people follow the law
Police enforce the law and keep the peace.

executive power
the power and authority to administer the laws, one of the three powers under the Australian Constitution
Australian Government ministers and the Governor-General have executive power to administer the laws made by the Australian Parliament.

federation
the union of colonies into one nation with the colonies retaining certain powers
In 1901, the colonies were united into a federation called the Commonwealth of Australia.

First Fleet
the group of 11 ships which set out from Britain under Captain Arthur Phillip to establish a convict settlement in New South Wales
On Australia Day we remember the landing of the First Fleet at Sydney Cove on 26 January 1788.

floral emblem
national flower
Australia’s floral emblem is the golden wattle.

forced isolation
a form of domestic violence where one partner in a relationship controls who the other partner sees and talks to, what they read and where they go Sandi was in forced isolation because her husband did not allow her to visit friends or family.

from this time forward
from now and in the future
At the citizenship ceremony, you promise to be loyal to Australia from this time forward.

icon
a well known image
The Opera House is a famous Sydney icon.

Indigenous people
the original inhabitants of the land – in Australia, the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people
The Indigenous people of Australia make up 2.5 per cent of the Australian population.

Judaeo-Christian
of both the Jewish and the Christian religions
Judaeo-Christian values are those based on lessons from the Bible.
judicial power
the power and authority to interpret and apply the laws, one of the three powers under the Australian Constitution
The courts in Australia have the judicial power to interpret and apply the law.

legislative power
the power and authority to make and change the laws, one of the three powers under the Australian Constitution
Under the constitution, parliament has legislative power, that is, the power to make laws.

liberties (liberty)
personal freedom and independence
In our democratic society, people have freedom of speech, freedom of expression, freedom of religion and freedom of association. We value these liberties.

magistrate
a judge of a lower court
The magistrate found the thief guilty and sent him to jail.

mateship
helping and receiving help from others, especially in difficult times
When my car broke down, the other drivers helped to push it in the spirit of mateship.

national anthem
national song
Australia’s national anthem is ‘Advance Australia Fair’.

parliamentary democracy
a system of government based on the regular election of representatives to parliament by the citizens
In a parliamentary democracy, the people vote for their representatives.

permanent resident a person who has a visa to work and live in Australia with no time limit Abdul’s Japanese neighbour is a permanent resident of Australia and works at a bank.

political party
a group of people who share similar ideas about how a country should be governed Members of a political party meet regularly, for example, to discuss improvements to public transport.

public service
the use of time, energy or skill for the good of the nation
Jose provided a valuable public service by helping refugees to settle in Australia.

referendum
a vote by all voters on a proposed change to the Australian Constitution
In a 1967 referendum, the people voted to count Indigenous Australians in the census.
representative
a person who acts or speaks for others
My local council representative liked my idea and presented it at the council meeting.

review
to consider a proposal for a new law and decide whether to accept or reject it
The Senate, as the House of Review, debated a taxation Bill from the Lower House.

secret ballot
a system of voting where people vote privately, so no one can influence or pressure them to vote in a certain way
In a secret ballot, no one else watches while you write your vote.

secular
separate from religion
In a secular society there is no official religion.

set up to build, establish, start
Governor Phillip set up the first colony in New South Wales.

shire
a local government area
The roads in my shire are very safe.

social security
government pensions or benefits to help unemployed people, disabled people, elderly people and others in need
When Trang lost her job, she had to apply for social security.

try your luck
to take a chance
Every year, I try my luck and bet $10 on a horse in the Melbourne Cup.

volunteer
a person who gives their time to a person or organisation without expecting payment
Raza is a volunteer who teaches people English in their homes.
Practice test questions

Australia and its people

1. What do we remember on Anzac Day?
   a. The landing of the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps at Gallipoli, Turkey
   b. The arrival of the first free settlers from Great Britain
   c. The landing of the First Fleet at Sydney Cove

2. What are the colours of the Australian Aboriginal Flag?
   a. Black, red and yellow
   b. Green, white and black
   c. Blue, white and green

3. Which official symbol of Australia identifies Commonwealth property?
   a. The national anthem
   b. Australia's national flower
   c. Commonwealth Coat of Arms

Australia’s democratic beliefs, rights and liberties

4. Which of these statements about Australia’s system of government is correct?
   a. The Queen of Australia chooses people to form the Australian Parliament
   b. The government is elected by the people
   c. The Prime Minister chooses our Members of Parliament

5. Which of these is an example of freedom of speech?
   a. People can peacefully protest against government decisions
   b. Men and women are treated equally in a court of law
   c. Australians are free to not follow a religion

6. Which of these statements about government in Australia is correct?
   a. The government does not allow some religions
   b. Government in Australia is secular
   c. Religious laws are passed by parliament

7. Which of these is an example of equality in Australia?
   a. Everyone follows the same religion
   b. Men and women have the same rights
   c. Everyone belongs to the same political party

8. Which of these is a responsibility of Australian citizens aged 18 years or over?
   a. To attend local council meetings
   b. To vote in elections
   c. To have a current Australian passport

9. Which of these is a responsibility of Australian citizens aged 18 years or over?
   a. To do local community service
   b. To carry a passport at all times
   c. To serve on a jury if called to do so

10. Which of these statements about passports is correct?
    a. Australian citizens can apply for an Australian passport
    b. Permanent residents can hold an Australian passport
    c. Australian citizens need a passport and visa to return to Australia
Government and the law in Australia

11. Which of these statements about voting in Australian elections is correct?
   a. People are free and safe to vote for any candidate
   b. Voting is by a show of hands
   c. People must write their name on their vote

12. What happened in Australia on 1 January 1901?
   a. The Australian Constitution was changed by a referendum
   b. The Australian Constitution came into effect
   c. The Australian and New Zealand Army Corps was formed

13. What is the name of the legal document that sets out the rules for the government of Australia?
   a. The Australian Federation
   b. The Australian Commonwealth
   c. The Australian Constitution

14. What is a referendum?
   a. A vote to change the government
   b. A vote to change the Australian Constitution
   c. A vote to change the Prime Minister

15. Which arm of government has the power to interpret and apply laws?
   a. Legislative
   b. Executive
   c. Judicial

16. Which of these is a role of the Governor-General?
   a. The appointment of state premiers
   b. The signing of Bills passed by the Australian Parliament
   c. The appointment of the Head of State

17. Which of these statements about state governments is correct?
   a. All states have the same constitution
   b. Each state has its own constitution
   c. The states have no constitution

18. What is the name given to the party or coalition of parties with the second largest number of members in the House of Representatives?
   a. The Government
   b. The Opposition
   c. The Senate

19. What is the name of a proposal to make a law in parliament?
   a. Royal Assent
   b. Bill
   c. Debate

20. Who maintains peace and order in Australia?
   a. Public servants
   b. Police
   c. Lawyers

Answers:
16. 2a. 3b. 4c. 5a. 6b. 7b. 8b. 9c. 10b. 11b. 12b. 13c. 14b. 15c. 16b. 17b. 18b. 19a. 20b
The end of the testable section